‘Culture of delete, delete, delete’

SECRECY

RCMP to investigate staff trashing emails

Matt Kieltyka
Metro | Vancouver

The province’s Privacy Commissioner released a damning report Thursday on how the provincial government is handling freedom of information requests. DARRYL DYCK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

The B.C. government fosters a “culture of delete, delete, delete,” says Opposition leader John Horgan after the release of a damning report accusing political staff of delaying Freedom of Information requests and deleting sensitive emails.

The RCMP have also been asked to investigate former Ministry of Transportation ministerial assistant George Gretes for allegedly lying under oath after deleting a co-workers’ emails related to an information request into the Highway of Tears.

Elizabeth Denham, the province’s Information and Privacy Commissioner, released the scathing report, titled Access Denied, Thursday after investigating the mishandling of three separate Freedom of Information requests made to the ministries of transportation, advanced education and the Office of the Premier.

She found staff were “deleting emails responsive to access to information requests and preventing others from producing these records,” “failing to keep any sent emails, irrespective of the topic” and, in Gretes’ case, “failing to tell the truth to my office under oath.”

“It is difficult to overstate the seriousness of the problems that my office discovered in the course of this investigation,” Denham writes. “I am deeply disappointed by the practices our investigation uncovered. I would have expected that staff in ministers’ offices and in the Office of the Premier would have a better understanding of records management and their obligation to file, retain and provide relevant records when an access request is received.”

The investigation was first launched when former Ministry of Transportation executive assistant Tim Duncan wrote to Denham, alleging that in 2014, Gretes took control of his keyboard and “triple deleted” (meaning emails were deleted, then cleared out of the deleted folder and then wiped from a recovery file so a record of them no longer exists) 12 to 20 emails related to government meetings with First Nations about the Highway of Tears, which had been requested through a Freedom of Information request.

According to Duncan’s evidence, Gretes then allegedly told him, “Hey, you don’t need to worry about this anymore, it’s done.”

Gretes denied all accusations, but Denham concluded that Gretes lied about engaging in the act of triple deleting and that his evidence about the incident was inconsistent.

She saw Duncan as a more credible witness and forensic evidence found that a number of emails had indeed been triple deleted from his account that day.

> “It is difficult to overstate the seriousness of the problems that my office discovered.”
> Elizabeth Denham

“I therefore find it is more likely than not that George Gretes deleted emails on Tim Duncan’s computer on November 20, 2014, that may have been responsive to the Highway 16/the Highway of Tears access request.”

“Finally, I cannot overstate the gravity with which I viewed the false testimony given during this investigation by George Getes,” the report reads. “To that end, I have referred the matter for investigation to the RCMP.”

Getes, who was suspended with pay when the allegations were first made, has now resigned.

Denham found other violations of staff failing to fulfill their duties as set out in the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act.

Premier Christy Clark’s office was directly implicated in the report.

Clark’s deputy chief of staff Michele Cadario was found to delete and purge her emails every time she shut down her computer, leaving no record of any outgoing emails.

“This practice creates a scenario where she will almost never have a sent email and this responsive to an access request,” writes Denham. “From my investigators’ review of her November 27, 2014 account, we can confirm that she has not personally retained a single email she has ever sent from her government email address.”

Denham made a number of recommendations, including immediate measures to prevent government employees from deleting emails.

The report’s findings caused havoc during question period in Victoria Thursday as the Opposition NDP hammered the Liberal government on its lack of transparency and willful destruction of records.

“It’s a culture of delete, delete, delete,” Horgan told Metro, repeating a line he used in the legislature. “There’s a pattern here, it isn’t an isolated incident. It’s calculated.”

Horgan, who noted Clark was absent during question period, said the public has a legal right to request records that show how government decisions are made.”

Amrik Virk, Minister of Technology, Innovation and Citizens’ Services, said, “the commission has made a number of important findings that we take seriously and government is committed to acting on her recommendations.”

Former B.C. information and privacy commissioner David Loukidelis has been retained to help implement the recommendations and enhance freedom of information training for staff.

Virk said the Office of the Premier will also strengthen its processes in light of the findings.

Park board OKs race at Stanley Park

Emily Jackson
Metro | Vancouver

More than 2,000 triathletes are expected to hit downtown Vancouver next summer for the Canadian championships of the Ironman 5150 triathlon.

The park board voted this week to allow Ironman to move the Olympic-length course — a 1.5-kilometre swim, 40-kilometre bike ride and 10-kilometre run — to Stanley Park from Spanish Banks, where it was held for years.

Ironman purchased the event formerly known as the Subaru Vancouver Triathlon in 2014 with plans to upgrade it from a mostly local race to a destination event and Canadian championship. It expects the new course will spur up to $14 million in economic activity by attracting 2,500 participants and approximately 10,000 visitors from around the world — well above the approximately 400 that participated in the 2015 race.

But it took some convincing to get the park board to permit the July 10, 2016, event in Stanley Park.

> These are sort of signature events for the city.
> Sarah Kirby-Yung, board vice chairwoman

The board delayed its decision by a month to get more information on the route, even though Multisport Canada hosts an Olympic triathlon there on Labour Day weekend. (That event only attracts a few hundred participants.)

Board vice chairwoman Sarah Kirby-Yung said commissioners decided to move up the race's start time by an hour to 6 a.m. to be considerate of road closures and other park users.

"It was being sensitive to the fact that it's a very busy time of year in the summer," Kirby-Yung said Thursday.

That said, the commissioners are excited for the event that will have a unique start from the Harbour Green Dock.

"These are sort of signature events for the city," Kirby-Yung said. "The organization's desire was always to have it in Stanley Park because it's very iconic."

British Columbians wanted change: Poll

Matt Kieltyka
Metro | Vancouver

Change was the driving force for British Columbian voters in the federal election, a poll has found.

According to an online survey conducted by Insights West, in partnership with the Vancouver Sun, 53 per cent of Liberal voters in the province said the main factors in their decision was a "desire to change" and "the party's leader."

The poll contrasts Justin Trudeau's popularity as leader to that of outgoing Prime Minister Stephen Harper.

While Trudeau himself was one of the main reason people voted Liberal, 74 per cent of British Columbians felt it was time for a new Conservative leader to replace Stephen Harper.

Like much of the country, the Liberals enjoyed great success in British Columbia, where they increased their seat count from two to 17.

It is the strongest support the Liberals have had in British Columbia since Trudeau's father, Pierre, was prime minister in 1968.

Researchers say resistance training slows brain aging in older women

Thandi Fletcher
Metro | Vancouver

New research out of UBC suggests lifting weights may slow brain aging in older women. COLOURBOX.COM

Lifting weights to build muscle might boost the ego, but new research from the University of B.C. suggests it may also go to your head.

A new study carried out at the Aging, Mobility, and Cognitive Neuroscience Laboratory at UBC suggests light resistance training might slow brain aging in older women.

While studies have shown aerobic exercise like running to be good for the brain, Teresa Liu-Ambrose, the lab's director and a professor of physical therapy at UBC, said this is among the first studies to reveal the benefits of weight training on the brain.

"What's most exciting is we didn't expect resistance training to have these types of effects," she told Metro. "Most people think of running and swimming ... as being good for the brain, but what we are finding is that strength training certainly does have similar benefits."

For the study, which has been published this month in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society, researchers followed a group of 155 women between the ages of 65 and 75.

Among the group, 54 of the women had showed evidence through MRI scans of a type of brain lesion that is a common sign of aging.

For a year, the researchers followed the women while they began three types of exercise routines. One group started lifting weights once a week, while a second group lifted weights twice a week. A third group, which acted as a control, started a stretching and balance training regimen only.

> It's impactful because not everybody (has) the ability to partake in aerobic-based exercises like running or swimming.
> Teresa Liu-Ambrose, lab director and UBC professor

The women's brains were scanned again at the end of the year, and the results were surprising.

The researchers found that the groups that only stretched and lifted weights once a week showed progression of both the number and size of lesions on their brains.

But, among the women who lifted weights twice a week, the researchers found slowed progression of the lesions.

She said the study's findings help highlight the importance of weight training for older people, not only for their physical health but also their cognitive well-being.

"It's impactful because not everybody does have the ability to partake in aerobic-based exercises like running or swimming, especially among older adults," she said.

"They might have other conditions that reduce their ability to have that mobility, so resistance training can modify it."

While this study only looked at women, Liu-Ambrose said the team plans on carrying out the same research on men to see how their brains compare.

WEATHER

Ski hills brace for El Nino

Ski resort operators in British Columbia hope mounds of snow this winter will blanket the bad memories of last year's dismal season, but with a strong El Nino system due to hit the province, those hopes may melt away.

Most forecasters agree El Nino will bring warmer coastal temperatures, but opinions vary about what that means for snowfall on coastal and interior mountains.

The director of the Mount Washington Resort on Vancouver Island said hopes are pinned on three decades of weather data collected on the hill.

"Years there were El Ninos were the years that we seem to get the most amount of snow," Don Sharpe said. "Sometimes an El Nino year would bring a little bit less, but for the most part, it seems to be bringing the snowfall that we want."

But Environment Canada meteorologist Matt MacDonald said balmy temperatures are associated with the incoming weather system.

"With these higher-than-normal temperatures expected throughout the winter and into next spring, unfortunately a higher proportion of the total snowfall will fall as rain," he said. "The average freezing level will be a little bit higher, by the tune of about two to 400 metres, meaning that, for the North Shore mountains, not the greatest news.

"Places like Whistler that benefit from more vertical won't fare too badly, but definitely not as much snow in the village," MacDonald said.

Whistler Mountain, at 2,181 metres, and Mount Washington, at 1,917 metres, could stay above the freezing level, but Vancouver's North Shore hills are all below 1,500 metres.

B.C. woman's letter to Trudeau speaks to many on social media

NEW LEADERSHIP

More than 30K liked Casandra Fletcher's Facebook post

A letter written to Justin Trudeau by a B.C. woman has gone viral, as thousands of people across Canada respond to her call for positive change.

Casandra Fletcher told Torstar News Service she cast a strategic vote for Trudeau, in hopes of ousting the Conservatives from power. But, as she watched early election results coming in on Monday, she began to worry about the political direction of the country.

"I was watching the map of Canada turn red in the Atlantic provinces and I thought 'Oh my god look at this … What have we all done? Did we all just get snowballed by fear?" said Fletcher.

The self-described average West Coast mom began writing a letter to Trudeau. And, by the time the majority had been announced, Fletcher said, the letter was finished.

"In a democracy, why do I feel like I have to 'play my cards' when I vote?" she wrote. "How many millions of us gambled today on whatever bet would be 'not harper'?" (sic)

Contained in the letter is a list of 10 hopes for the prime minister-designate — requests for action that include, "Rebuild Canada's name on the world stage… We can become peacekeepers again," and, "Protect our rare and natural resources and don't get caught in the jargon."

Fletcher posted the letter on Facebook Monday night, along with a photo of her mailing it to Trudeau. As of Wednesday evening, the post had garnered more than 33,000 likes and 30,000 shares.

"I'm super excited about the fact people dig it … I love that it's being shared," Fletcher told the Star. "I actually think Justin might read it now. And hopefully he'll even answer it."

In addition to the avalanche of likes and shares her post has gotten, Fletcher said she has received hundreds of messages from people who had read her letter feel the same things she does.

Others praised the respectful way Fletcher communicated her feelings — something she said she wants more Canadians to learn to do.

"I hope that people can focus on what matters to them and find respectful and productive ways to express it…" Fletcher said. "I think people need to just channel (their) passion into something that's going to be really positive and productive."

City launches free public Wi-Fi

Vancouver has partnered with Telus as part of digital strategy

Emily Jackson
Metro | Vancouver

Vancouverites can officially get free Wi-Fi at six city facilities as of Thursday.

It's part of a larger partnership between the city and Telus to provide free Internet at 43 locations across the city including pools, theatres and marinas. When the city inked the deal with Telus in April, it said the roll out would happen by the end of October.

Four community centres (Mount Pleasant, Champlain Heights, Coal Harbour and Roundhouse) and two golf course clubhouses (Langara and Fraserview) are the first facilities where people can give their data plans a break and surf the web for free. The rest of the facilities will get access in the "coming months," according to a city news release.

The Wi-Fi comes at no cost to user or the city, in exchange for letting Telus set up telecommunications equipment on city property that can also be used for private purposes. Surrey has a similar partnership with Shaw.

Free Internet access is part of the city's digital strategy, which aims to make it easier to close the digital divide and help everyone get online. Advocates have been pushing for the service for at least a decade.

Wi-Fi is now available at six facilities including four community centres and two golf clubhouses

The next facilities to get Wi-Fi will be the Creekside and Trout Lake community centres, the Gathering Place and the McCleery Golf Course clubhouse.

To connect to Wi-Fi, select the #VanWiFi network, open your browser, accept the terms and conditions, and then you'll be connected to the Internet.

Vancouver has started rolling out free public Wi-Fi at six civic centres, including Coal Harbour Community Centre.

B.C. brings in expense limits

ELECTIONS

Move does not address contribution, donation limits

Emily Jackson
Metro | Vancouver

Vancouver's hopes of stricter reforms to local election campaign financing were dashed Thursday when B.C. tabled legislation to introduce expense limits for the 2018 election, but not donation limits or a ban on corporate and union donations.

"It certainly didn't have anything we were hoping to see," Coun. Andrea Reimer said of the legislation that aims to level the playing field in municipal elections.

The bill recommends different campaign expense limits for mayoral and council candidates, with the max spend depending on the size of the community. It also sets a limit on third-party advertising in the 28 days before the election.

But Vancouver has repeatedly requested stronger rules, even if they only apply to the city, in order to counter the widespread perception that major donors can influence public policy. This perception is extreme in a city where the two major parties pull in millions, including hundreds of thousands from developers and unions.

"It does feel a bit frustrating … from this it seems (the province) doesn't even understand the problem," she said. "It does not in any way address the question of undue influence."

The province will hold a final consultation before it passes the legislation. The city intends to participate, although its submissions have thus far gone unheeded.

The top priorities are placing contribution limits on individual donors, banning corporate and union donations, and requiring continuous disclosure so parties don't only have to report donations and spending in election years.

IMMIGRATION

Alan Kurdi's family invited to reapply

The aunt of a young Syrian boy whose lifeless body was photographed on a Mediterranean beach says Canadian government officials have invited her to make another refugee application for one of her brothers and his family.

Tima Kurdi's application to bring her brother Mohammed Kurdi and his family to Canada was rejected because it didn't have the necessary paperwork.

Kurdi said an official with Citizenship and Immigration Canada contacted her last week and asked that she reapply for Mohammed.

The government is no longer asking for the difficult-to-obtain United Nations documents needed to satisfy requirements to qualify as a refugee, she said.

But Kurdi said the policy change comes too late to save the wife and two children of her other brother, Abdullah Kurdi.

The trio drowned while making the treacherous water crossing from Turkey to Greece.

"Still we are hurt with the tragedy and the guilt about (how) we couldn't save this family," Kurdi said Thursday.

"It's nice to bring some of my family here with me, but it's still going to be forever and ever that spot in our hearts that's really burning."

Abdullah reportedly paid smugglers about $5,800 for the deadly voyage — money his sister sent him from Canada.

The heart-wrenching image of Abdullah's dead son, Alan, focused global attention on the refugee crisis and became a heated topic of debate during the federal election campaign.

A picture of the toddler lying face down in the surf, wearing blue shorts and a bright red T-shirt, prompted an international outcry in early September.

Police ask for help finding sexual assault suspect

Thandi Fletcher
Metro | Vancouver

Police have connected two indecent acts and sexual assaults in Abbotsford after DNA evidence on clothing from both victims was found to be from the same man.

Const. Ian MacDonald, spokesman for Abbotsford police, said that in both incidents the man "ejaculated on two different women on two different occasions, in an amusement park and in a dollar store."

"Pretty disturbing circumstances for anyone to have to endure," he told Metro.

MacDonald said investigators are appealing to the public for help identifying the man, and are asking anyone who experienced a similar incident to report it to police.

The first incident happened at 10:25 p.m. on Nov. 8, 2014. According to police, a 24-year-old woman was playing pinball with friends at Castle Fun Park on North Parallel Road when a man approached her from behind.

Police said the man appeared to be touching his genitals and recording something on his phone. The man left a substance on the woman's clothing. After she noticed him, he quickly walked away, police said.

The most recent incident happened at 2:25 p.m. on May 7.

Police said a woman who was shopping at a Dollar Store on Essendene Avenue when she noticed a man who appeared to be shopping in the same aisle as her. When he left, the woman noticed a wet substance on the floor and on the back of her clothing, police said.

The suspect is described as white, in his mid-30s, five-foot-10 and 180 pounds with a chubby face and a five o'clock shadow.

At the time of the Nov. 8 incident, he was wearing a light blue baseball cap with white letters, a light blue Canucks hoodie and blue jeans.

Kamloops dentist fined $100k for brain injury

A dentist from Kamloops who improperly sedated a young woman, leaving her with a severe brain injury, has been ordered by a disciplinary panel to pay more than $100,000.

The College of Dental Surgeons of B.C. ruled this summer that Dr. Bobby Rishiraj did not recognize his patient, identified only as HZ, was in cardiac arrest and so delayed resuscitating her in November 2012. HZ was deeply sedated to have her wisdom teeth removed, even though Rishiraj was approved only to provide moderate sedation.

PARLIAMENT HILL SHOOTING

Sorrow and pride mix at memorial

Marcus Cirillo, son of fallen soldier Cpl. Nathan Cirillo, had a front-row seat to an emotional show of sympathy and respect on Thursday as thousands gathered to mark the one-year anniversary of the Parliament Hill shooting.

The six-year-old boy sat with his family just a few feet away from where his father was gunned down on Oct. 22, 2014 by a shooter who then stormed the Hill's Centre Block.

The event also honoured the life of warrant officer Patrice Vincent, who was purposefully run over by a vehicle two days earlier in Saint-Jean-sur-Richelieu, Que.

Mourners lifted their bowed heads as fighter jets roared overheard in missing-man formation.

Thousands lined the streets surrounding the National War Memorial, hoping to get a glimpse of the ceremony and hear Gov. Gen. David Johnston.

"Warrant officer Patrice Vincent and Cpl. Nathan Cirillo stood up for our democratic values: tolerance, diversity, equality and fairness and of the rule-of-law," said Johnston.

In a touching moment, Prime Minister Stephen Harper and prime minister-designate Justin Trudeau laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Louise Vincent, one of Patrice's sisters, said the ceremony was "beautiful," but seeing the fighter jets was emotional for her.

"We had this at his funeral with helicopters; now we had this with CF-18s today. That's difficult, because it's him leaving," she said.

Yvan and Angela Barbe, veterans with the Canadian Armed Forces, were among the dozens of people who laid a bouquet of flowers at the memorial.

Yvan said he now has mixed emotions when he walks by the War Memorial.

"It's sadness, but it's also pride," he said. "We served, and our son is currently serving, so we feel sadness for what happened to the fallen soldiers but pride because we served ourselves."

70 prisoners freed from ISIL in U.S./Iraqi raid

Believing that Islamic State captives held on a compound in northern Iraq faced "imminent mass execution," dozens of U.S. special operations troops and Iraqi forces raided the site Thursday, freeing approximately 70 Iraqi prisoners in an operation that saw the first American killed in combat in the country since the U.S. war against IS began in 2014, officials said.

At least 10 dead in Shiite mosque suicide bomb

A suicide bomber targeted a Shiite mosque in southwest Pakistan on Thursday, killing at least 10 people and wounding several others, a government official said.

Six children were among those killed, Bugti said. The male suicide bomber was wearing a woman's head-to-toe burqa dress to deceive guards, he said.

ISRAEL

One dead in case of mistaken identity

A Jewish Israeli man was shot and killed in a scuffle with Israeli soldiers who suspected he was a Palestinian attacker, police said Thursday, in a reflection of the jittery mood that has gripped Israelis amid a spate of near-daily stabbings.

The shooting came as Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu was in Germany for talks with U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry on how to restore calm. Kerry is set to meet with the Palestinians this weekend.

Police spokesman Micky Rosenfeld said the shooting of the Israeli man in Jerusalem late Wednesday occurred after soldiers patrolling the area asked him to show his ID as he got off a bus.

The man refused, scuffled with the soldiers and then attempted to seize one of their weapons. A private security guard nearby shot the man, and one soldier also opened fire, police said. The man later died of his wounds.

Police said the soldiers had grown suspicious when the man, speaking in Hebrew, asked to see their IDs and proclaimed, "I am ISIS," referring to the Islamic State militant group.

"The soldiers had high suspicions that he was a terrorist," Rosenfeld said. Police later identified the man as a 28-year-old Jewish resident of Jerusalem, without providing further details.

THE CURRENT OUTBREAK

Ten Israelis have been killed over the last month, mainly in stabbing attacks. On the Palestinian side, 48 people have been killed, 27 of them labeled by Israel as attackers, the others killed in clashes with Israeli forces.

The violence erupted a month ago, fueled by rumours that Israel was plotting to take over a sensitive Jerusalem holy site revered by both Jews and Muslims.

Tensions rise at border crossings

BALKANS

Police struggle to handle thousands of refugees

Soldiers attempt to maintain order on Thursday at a border crossing in Spielfeld, Austria, as refugees wait to be transferred after arriving from Slovenia.

PETR DAVID JOSEK AND DARKO BANDIC/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Refugees traded punches and scuffled with police at a Serbian border crossing and a man was stabbed in a similar clash on the Slovenian border Thursday, as pent-up pressures on their trek toward hoped-for safe haven in the European Union boiled over.

Slovenian police said the stabbing took place near Rigonci earlier in the day, and that the victim was given medical treatment.

The unrest at Berkasovo village on the Serbian border subsided after several minutes. But the outbreak reflected the frustrations of the tens of thousands of people facing long waits and other hardships as they make their way north over the Balkans each day in search of better lives in prosperous EU countries.

Further along that route, Austrian police moved to relieve pent-up pressure which they feared could lead to violence, removing barriers at an overcrowded collection point at a border crossing with Slovenia. A day earlier, thousands of refugees broke through police obstacles at the same collection centre at the Spielfeld border point.

Many of the refugees spilled out of the facility Thursday but then gathered nearby, following police instructions. But many others walked away from the border.

The collection area just inside the Austrian border was again full by afternoon. Police and soldiers struggled to maintain order as the crowd surged every time a group was separated for transport by bus to shelters and processing.

Trampled, pushed or otherwise hurt, several people were seen receiving medical attention, including one boy, about 8 years old, whose leg was being bandaged and a younger boy being given oxygen. At least two adults were taken away on stretchers.

A police officer with a loudspeaker urged people to sit and wait for buses, warning "if you make trouble, we make trouble." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SWEDEN

Fire makes refugee barracks unlivable; arson suspected

The teenage refugees had a new home in the newly built asylum centre in southern Sweden. Hours before moving in, flames broke out in the wooden barracks.

No one was hurt. But it was among a spate of fires at asylum facilities raising concerns that the Scandinavian country's generous policy toward refugees is under a serious backlash.

"Happily no one has died. These people have fled war, hunger, terror, poverty and found shelter here, where they are met with fire," said Mona Lindgren, a retired shopkeeper in this sleepy town just north of Malmo, Sweden's third largest city. "That's not acceptable."

Last week's fire at the barracks, intended as temporary housing for unaccompanied children, was quickly extinguished, but the building became uninhabitable.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MORE FIRES

Early Thursday, a former retirement home, also meant for refugees, was partly damaged by fire; no one was inside at the time. Two days earlier 14 refugees were evacuated in the middle of the night from a burning building near Munkedal, in southwestern Sweden. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Airbnb offers host insurance

SHARING ECONOMY

Canada one of 15 new countries to get protection

Airbnb is adding a new level of insurance coverage in Canada as part of wider support for people who list their properties through its service.

The online accommodation provider announced Thursday that its Host Protection Insurance program, which launched earlier this year in the United States, would be rolled out in 15 more countries.

The expanded coverage will provide compensation if a guest is injured at a property listed on Airbnb and brings a claim against the host.

The insurance could also cover damages a guest causes to the surrounding area of a property — such as accidental water damage if a pipe burst affects a neighbouring apartment.

Coverage, which comes at no additional cost to the host, tops out at $1 million, the company said.

The Host Protection Insurance program, which will be provided through a partnership with a Lloyd's of London participating insurer, comes after Airbnb spent four years on an agreement that satisfied the insurers, said Airbnb product lead Jonathan Golden.

"The insurance industry is not fast-paced, so it has taken time to educate them on these platforms," he said.

"It has been a challenge to handle products like these (which are) unique and individual solutions."

Airbnb has been growing in popularity as the so-called "sharing economy" becomes more commonplace with the help of taxi-hailing service Uber and various other apps.

Golden said Airbnb executives wanted to line up a significant number of countries before it launched the expanded insurance coverage.

Since its U.S. launch in January, less than 50 claims have been filed under the Host Protection program when factoring in all of the eight million guest bookings, he said.

Airbnb, which offers a substitute to hotels, has about 33,000 host listings across Canada. THE CANADIAN PRESS

City readers make Metro part of lives

Whether people are picking up Metro for their daily briefing on essential local news, entertainment or sports, readers across the country deserve a thank you.

Metro's newspaper editions and digital platforms are read by 1.8-million people every day in Canada's major cities, according to a readership survey by Vividata released on Thursday.

In Vancouver, 294,000 people pick up our paper Monday to Friday.

"We really appreciate how Vancouverites have embraced Metro and are making it part of their lives," said Steve Shrout, vice president and group publisher, Metro Western Canada. "We are extremely pleased to see that our investment in local content is resonating with readers."

Vividata is the new organization formed by the merger of NADBank and PMB. It measures audience numbers in print and digital media markets.

CATHERINE LITTLE ON TALKING TO KIDS ABOUT SAD STUFF

A horrible car crash. Three sisters killed in a farm accident. The anniversary of the shooting in our nation's capital. These images are seared into our collective memory. The reality is, many children will experience death.

When I was in Grade 10, there was an announcement on the PA system in the middle of English class. A student had died. I remember the teacher was visibly shaken.

What made me think about this more than 30 years later were recent news events. Multiple horrible car crashes. Three sisters killed in a farm accident. The anniversary of shooting in our nation's capital that left a young soldier dead. These deaths were particularly horrific and will be deeply traumatic to many. The images of the dead and grieving seared into our collective memory.

The reality is many children will experience death, sometimes that of a young friend. Occasionally, they learn about these things at school or in the media. Teachers can help, but other significant adults are just as important.

A 2013 paper in the Alberta Journal of Educational Research reported that teachers are uncertain about discussing death in the classroom. And it certainly wasn't covered when I went to teacher's college.

I wish I had been better prepared when one of my students died suddenly a few months into Grade Seven. My principal phoned me at home on a Sunday night so I would know ahead of the PA announcement. It was my first year teaching and I was struggling to get to know almost 200 students. It was her first year at a new school.

Natasha Cirillo, sister of the late Cpl. Nathan Cirillo, comforts the soldier's six-year-old son Marcus during a ceremony marking the one-year anniversary of the Oct. 22, 2014 Parliament Hill shooting. Significant adults — parents, teachers, extended family and even coaches — have a responsibility to answer kids' questions about death head-on, writes Catherine Little.
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Children need to talk about death. Protecting them from what has happened often leaves them feeling alone, even alienated.

Students and staff were encouraged to attend the funeral, and counselors were available. But we didn't know who would need the most support. Some of the students barely knew who she was. Others were close friends.

Significant adults — parents, guardians, extended family, special teachers and coaches etc. — are vital in these situations. According to the Canadian Virtual Hospice, children need to talk about death. Research shows that honesty is the best course of action. Protecting children from what has happened often leaves them feeling alone, even alienated.

And yes, children can even become deeply affected by a tragic story on the news. Each death will affect each child differently. It helps if there is an adult to start an honest conversation.

It can start very simply with, "I'm really sad that they died. How do you feel?" Acknowledging feelings and leaving an open invitation to talk can make the difference.

The student who died when I was in Grade 10 was my friend Loretta. No one in my high school knew we had been friends since we were six or so. I visited her at home when she got sick. I stood by her hospital bed when we knew the end was near. And yet, I learned about her death like it was a reminder to try out for the volleyball team. Luckily, I had some significant adults in my life. They didn't tell me it was for the best. They listened when I needed to rail against the injustice of it. But mostly, they were there to sit with me when I didn't want to be alone.

The complex feminism of the woman trying to clear Ghomeshi's name

It's hard not to admire — even idolize — Marie Henein.

Particularly after you've read the new magazine profile of her.

Until it landed this week in Toronto Life, Henein had been defined in most Canadians' minds as the enigmatic lawyer representing former CBC host Jian Ghomeshi against explosive sexual assault charges.

That made her, to some, an enemy of feminism. To others, it made her not just a boss, but the boss. A frighteningly smart, incredibly talented (not to mention impeccably dressed) woman at the very top of criminal defense law in this country. So what if she is defending an alleged predator? Someone's got to.

Now, Henein is allowing us a far more intimate look, from which emerges a far more complex picture. And there are two questions to ask: Why now? And what (or so what) about her feminism?

Described as a shark, a brilliant strategist and incredibly hardworking, Henein also emerges as an astute sculptor of her own image. There are no missteps, there is always calculation.

Take this comment, which a CBC story attributes to a lecture she gave in 2010:

"The importance of developing your narrative starts from the moment the client walks into your office. It drives everything that you do, your analysis of the law, your comments to the media, your approach with experts and witnesses."

Under that light, I read the article as part of the Ghomeshi saga. After all, Henein hardly needs the media profile — she got that just by taking the case, and her handling of it will speak far more than a magazine piece.

Then there's her feminism.

A criminally low sexual-assault conviction rate in this country won't go away if lawyers like Henein keep doing their best in a system stacked against victims. On the flip side, lawyers should always do their best. Even if that means — as Henein has done in the past — attacking the credibility an alleged victim.

She is undoubtedly a feminist, who rejects the message women have to be perfect to "have it all." She brushes off questions about juggling motherhood and work by telling women to just do it. But that's not the sentiment of someone inclined to prioritize structural inequality in society, or our legal system, over individual agency. Henein's apparent religious devotion to the law seems to supersede her feminism.

We seem to want powerful women to reflect our own brand of feminism. But Henein seems to judge herself on her devotion to upholding the law. It's hardly fair to condemn her for doing exactly that.

VIN DIESEL

Self-directed debut led to Saving Private Ryan role

Richard Crouse
For Metro Canada

Usually the scariest thing about Vin Diesel is the amount of money his movies make. The Fast and Furious franchise has raked in more than $4 billion. Add in revenue from Guardians of the Galaxy and Riddick and you have a truly terrifying amount of money.

In his new film, The Last Witch Hunter, the raspy-voiced actor boasts, "You know what I'm afraid of? Nothing," as he delivers scares playing an immortal warrior who must prevent evil New York witches from destroying the world.

The 48-year-old is so convinced the movie will do well, he's already announced that the studio is developing a sequel.

"The first one doesn't hit theatres until October 23rd," he wrote on Facebook in July, "yet they want me to commit and already block out time to film it."

Before Fast and Furious made him Hollywood's version of an ATM, Diesel made baby steps towards becoming a superstar. Director Steven Spielberg saw Multi-Facial, Diesel's self directed, written, produced and scored über low budget short film and was so taken with the young actor he had the role of Private Caparzo in Saving Private Ryan specially written for him. The result was an effective performance that mixed physicality with poignancy. Winning the role, he says, was "like one of those Hollywood fairy tales that you never believed."

Critics began to take notice. New York Times critic A.O. Scott said he, "may be the sexiest ugly man in movies since Anthony Quinn" as Diesel lent his distinctive gravelly voice to the title character in the animated film The Iron Giant and played streetwise stockbroker Chris Varick in the 2000 stockbroker drama Boiler Room.

His breakout performance came with the sci-fi film Pitch Black. "Richard B. Riddick," he says by way of introduction. "Escaped convict. Murderer." Artificial eyes allow Riddick to see in the dark, making him very useful when bloodthirsty creatures attack during a month-long eclipse. The character became a franchise for the actor, spawning sequels, video games and animated films.

"I know it sounds corny but I feel like I learn about myself when I play that character," said Diesel. "Going to that dark isolated place produces some kind of vision or understanding about myself. He mirrors my own quest for identity, my eternal quest as a child."

Movies like Knockaround Guys and Babylon A.D. played on his tough guy persona, but with The Pacifier he tried to switch from cracking ribs to tickling funny bones. Playing a Navy Seal assigned to protect a house full of out-of-control kids, he attempted to prove he was more than just a muscle mass that got lucky in pictures.

The chaotic comedy made some money, but ultimately proved Diesel's strength lay in muscle, not mayhem.

Since then he has stayed the course, pumping out action-adventure films — including the soon-to-be relaunched xXx— proving himself to be a great action star.

Smarter than Stallone, younger than Schwarzenegger and with even less hair than Bruce Willis, his appeal transcends his biceps, as he also appears to have a brain in his head.

Throw in a large dollop of charisma and look out Jason Statham, you're about to be kick boxed into the old age home.

HOLLYWOOD

Elijah Wood returns at the witching hour

Like his fellow Lord of the Rings co-stars, Wood has the luxury of being picky. He could have settled for a string of never-ending fantasy knockoffs. Instead, like Viggo Mortensen, he's done what he wants.

The last decade has seen him lending his presence to smaller and/or unusual fare: the first-person horror Maniac; Open Windows, set entirely on a desktop; the TV show Wilfred, in which he acts opposite a talking dog.

Wood comes back to both big budgets and fantasy with The Last Witch Hunter, a super-sized Vin Diesel vehicle in which he plays the new priestly sidekick to the star's immortal slayer of the supernatural. He didn't take the job lightly.

What convinced you this was a worthy return to big budget genre fare?
It's weird to even say this, because it wasn't the case 20 years ago, but it was interesting to read something that was not based on a pre-existing source or was a sequel. It's bizarre that we have to say one of a film's merits is that it's original. F—ing strange.... And I was just surprised by the script. I found the mythology to be really detailed, the world-building to be really interesting.

> I was just surprised by the script. I found ... the world-building to be really interesting.
> Star Elijah Wood

This film is strong on visuals. The sets, for one, appear to be mostly real, as do many of the effects.
Some people are asking questions about what it was like to deal with the CG. In reality it was almost imperceptible to us — save for the witch bar where there was quite a bit of CG effects. But even there, there were a lot of practical effects. Most of the time we were surrounded by real things.... A lot of the sets and environments we were in were real. That goes a long way to making you feel rooted in the space.

Is it typical for you to get so involved with looking at all aspects of a production?
These are all questions I ask, honestly. When I read something I want to know what the approach is, who's going to shoot it, how it's going to be shot, what is the visual tone of the film and what are the designs going to look like. I'm a nerd, so I always ask these questions.

Aaron Sorkin turns fact into fiction

INTERVIEW

Writer behind Steve Jobs film defends his creative liberties

Aaron Sorkin will remind you that he is a writer when talking about his latest film, Steve Jobs.

As such, the dialogue-heavy account of the late Apple co-founder's life contains obvious fabrications in service of a larger truth.

It's centred on a series of verbal smackdowns between Jobs and various members of his inner circle, with Michael Fassbender starring as the tyrannical genius, Seth Rogen as co-founder/friend Steve (Woz) Wozniak and Kate Winslet as former Macintosh marketing chief Joanna Hoffman.

In the face of ardent critics — including Jobs's widow Laurene, Apple CEO Tim Cook and Apple's head of design and close friend Jony Ive — Sorkin has insisted this is "a painting, not a photograph."

"I would describe almost all non-fiction movies that way. But this one in particular," the screenwriter says in a recent visit to Toronto to discuss the film, which largely steers clear of impersonations and familiar catchphrases.

"And that's not to say I've changed any biographical facts about Steve Jobs. Here's what I've done: Steve did not have confrontations with the same five people 40 minutes before every product launch that he did. That's a writer's conceit and it announces itself pretty early on as one. The content of those confrontations, those are real."

If people are looking for a journalistic account, Sorkin encourages them to check out Walter Isaacson's exhaustive biography.

"The Santa Fe Opera just commissioned an opera about Steve Jobs that'll be out in 2017 — I wonder if people are going to be going around saying, 'Now, wait a second. Was Steve really a tenor in real life?"'

Here Sorkin talks about condensing a life and dealing with critics.

Michael Fassbender plays the titular role in Steve Jobs, opening this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

The construct employed here is obvious. But people who were close to Jobs seem to be upset that softer elements of the man they knew are not presented as they'd like.

The people I think you're talking about — Mrs. Jobs, Tim Cook the CEO of Apple, Jony Ive — haven't seen the movie. So they wouldn't know what's in the movie. I think they're reacting to Walter's book and they don't know what's in the movie. The people who knew Steve well who have seen the movie (including) Woz ... have reacted very positively to it and feel that Steve was captured. So I would just ask that judgment be reserved until you've seen the movie.

It is the movie you set out to make.

I'm really proud of everything that I've written — and that said, there isn't anything that I've written that I wouldn't mind having back and doing it again. And the same is true for this movie, for Steve Jobs, but not because of anything anyone has said.... It's a little surprising that there are certain things which in 2015 are coming up with very sophisticated audiences. For instance, take a movie like The Queen — no one thinks that Peter Morgan, the writer of The Queen, was actually in Balmoral Castle when these discussions were going on.... Writers are going to invent dialogue because people don't speak in dialogue and people's lives don't unfold in a series of scenes that form a narrative arc.

Seth Rogen will surprise his comedy fans for showing a lot of emotion as Woz.

He's fantastic in this movie. I think I'm right that we didn't discuss any other actor but Seth. Someone who can do comedy as honestly and intelligently as Seth does, there's really no worry in your mind that they're going to be able to do this material. You'd worry, 'Is someone able to be funny?' but you wouldn't worry going the other way. I never had a concern about Seth being able to handle this material. THE CANADIAN PRESS

5 THINGS WE LEARNED FROM THE STAR WARS TRAILER (OR THINK WE DID)

After a year of being teased, we finally got a full trailer this week for the new Star Wars film, The Force Awakens. It answered many questions but also raised new ones. What did we actually learn from the trailer? Quite a bit, but little of it is confirmed. Rigorous precautions have been taken to keep the plot of this seventh episode top secret. We can, however, tease out at least five things from the evidence at hand, with the assistance of fan speculation online. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

1 The Force is for real

The action picks up 30 years after events in 1983's Return of the Jedi, long enough for younger people to wonder if stories about the Force and the dark side and Jedi Knights are real.

"It's true," Harrison Ford's Han Solo says. "All of it."

2 Rey takes the lead from Luke

British actress Daisy Ridley is assuming the main hero role in The Force Awakens, similar to Mark Hamill's Jedi Knight trainee Luke Skywalker in the original Star Wars trilogy.

Her scavenger character Rey is every bit as resourceful as Luke, who so far has been barely seen and heard from. And her roly-poly sidekick droid BB-8 recalls Luke's mechanical pal R2-D2.

Trudeau in on the action

Even Justin Trudeau, Canada's prime minister-designate, got in on the act. The same night his Liberals roared to a governing majority in the federal election, he viewed the Star Wars trailer with his family. He was photographed watching his two young sons duel with toy light sabres.

While the actual plot of the new Star Wars film is still top secret, there's much to be gleaned from the trailer. HANDOUT

THE MOST LIKELY THING OF ALL?

Barring any galactic leaks, the full story of The Force Awakens won't be known until Dec. 18, or very near it.

3 Darth Vader has an evil apprentice

Adam Driver's villainous Kylo Ren, along with having a cool crossbar light sabre first glimpsed in last year's teaser, harbours ambitions to follow in Darth Vader's despotic footsteps with the First Order, an evil organization that morphed out of the vanquished Empire. "I will finish what you started," he says, as Vader's crumpled face mask suddenly flashes onscreen.

4 Leia is upset

Han Solo and Carrie Fisher's Princess Leia got happily married after all, but now they're very worried about something. They're briefly seen embracing in a manner that suggests great concern — Leia seems to be crying. Are they fearful for the fate of the galaxy or their daughter, who many fans think is Rey?

5 Bad guy goes good

Right from the first teaser last year, John Boyega's character Finn was hinted to be an Imperial Stormtrooper who is trying to go straight. He was trained to be a ferocious TIE Fighter but now says, "I have nothing to fight for." Oscar Isaac's X-Wing pilot character Poe Dameron, meanwhile, seems to be having trouble choosing between the light and the dark sides. He's seen screaming at someone who appears to be Kylo Ren.

Ode to an obscure English music scene

INTERVIEW

Northern Soul is a sleeper hit about a 1970s cultural anomaly

Steve Gow
For Metro Canada

There was glam rock. There was new wave. And who could forget disco. But there is one 1970's musical movement that you may not have heard of — northern soul.

Captured in the new film Northern Soul, the cultural movement briefly emerged in a distinct part of Britain and it consisted of particular dance moves and a penchant for obscure American soul music.

Photographer-turned-filmmaker Elaine Constantine has such fond memories of being a part those dance-hall days, she spent 15 years making a drama about coming-of-age in the midst of that northern English scene.

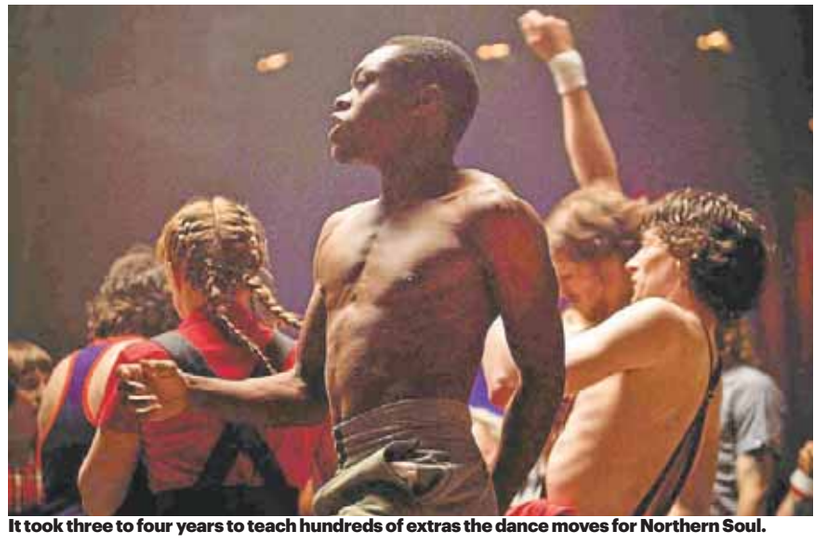
"Whenever I wasn't shooting photographs or in the lab, I was writing this film and trying to get it produced," admitted Constantine recently about the inspired narrative of two teens discovering the scene.

"Everything that happened has happened to someone at some point that I know and the actual characters all exist — they're all real people (so) they kind of wrote themselves in a way."

Over those years, Constantine slowly accumulated funds, found her cast and taught hundreds of extras specific dance moves ("we were training those kids for three or four years") but once she completed her project, she was disappointed to discover her efforts would only be seen on a handful of screens across the U.K.

"We put the message out to all the fans who had been following the film's progress and said demand your local cinema puts it on," said Constantine, whose followers were obviously eager.

"Within two weeks we had 125 cinemas confirmed and a lot of them had even bumped off their Disney films."



It took three to four years to teach hundreds of extras the dance moves for Northern Soul.
CONTRIBUTED

As a result, Northern Soul became a hit at the U.K. box office and has since been impressing moviegoers and critics with its heartwarming nostalgia and eye-opening thesis that the northern soul movement marks the origin of today's massive DJ culture — a genre that has seen the rise of such superstars as Deadmau5 and Tiësto.

As exemplified in Northern Soul, the DJs that spun these obscure soul records became de facto celebrities simply because they withheld the identity of the artists behind the music they spun.

"These (musicians) who were making these records had no idea they were even famous," she says.

"(All) you knew was whoever made this record, they were singing from the heart, they're singing truthful, emotional lyrics.

"The way they sang when they delivered those lyrics, I believed them."

Northern Soul is available on iTunes and VOD.

A LOST LEGACY

Artists never knew their reach in the U.K.

Constantine's affection for the era is bittersweet. After all, she recently met a destitute, former-soul singer named Darrow Fletcher that only discovered his popularity after being invited to the U.K. for a northern soul event.

"He could hardly get on the stage he was so unwell but he was overwhelmed by the effect his music had had on these people," said Constantine. "That moment seeing his legacy in the U.K. was wonderful."

THE TV DINNER JESSICA ALLEN

'I don't want my restaurant to be a place where you come and eat. We should be dealing in culinary orgasms.'

When it comes to watching our livelihoods being acted out on the big screen, there's pleasure in seeing what Hollywood gets right, and wrong. Journalists fixate on newsroom dramas, Classics majors love to hate sword-and-sandal movies and chefs adore films where food factors large: They have cult favourites like Big Night, Babette's Feast and Tampopo. But in recent years, movies like I Am Love, starring Tilda Swinton, and Eat Pray Love have taken food styling to the next level: one that leaves the audience drooling and on the edge of ecstasy.

It's called food porn.

Judging from the trailer, Burnt, which opens in select theatres on Friday, is not only a tale of redemption but a movie that will leave food lovers quivering. Bradley Cooper stars as chef Adam Jones, a former bad-boy chef hungry for a third Michelin star. So he assembles a dream team to open up the best restaurant in the world. "I don't want my restaurant to be a place where you come and eat," he tells fellow chef Helena, played by Sienna Miller, as she effortlessly churns out fresh ropes of linguine. "We should be dealing in culinary orgasms."

Cooper researched his role by spending time with three professionals, including Gordon Ramsay and his former mentor Marco Pierre White, who was the first British chef to be awarded three Michelin stars and, at the time, the youngest. But real life was just as instructional: "The thing that really paid off was the fact that I'd been doing research since I was a kid, working in restaurants," Cooper said in a recent interview.

THE MOVIE: Burnt

THE MEAL: A fagiolo

I never cooked during my decade-long tenure at an Italian restaurant. But I washed dishes, bussed tables, served food, recommended wine, expedited the pass and managed the front of house. I don't miss the hours — long nights and early mornings — but I miss the verve of restaurant life; the hustle and those moments when you lift your head from the chaotic multi-tasking and everything is swinging, just right.

It was an education, too. I learned that the best tomato sauce is essentially just really good tomatoes; that Italians don't put chicken on pizza, and green peppers are an anomaly in their kitchens. I learned classic combinations that allowed me to experiment with great success at home: think sausage and rapini; prosciutto and figs; good, extra virgin olive oil on everything.

This wasn't Michelin-starred cooking. Most dishes had five ingredients. Take the a fagiolo: red kidney beans, Italian tuna, tomatoes, red onion and fresh basil served over greens, which has become a dinnertime staple at home. Yes, I roll my eyes too when people talk about salads for dinner. But this salad satisfies — especially when served with good bread.

When I made it the other night for dinner, Simon swooned. He could, however, do without my overly affected Italian pronunciation of the dish. But I'd wager no one will protest Bradley Cooper's speaking French in Burnt. Cue the quivering.

Jessica Allen is the digital correspondent on CTV's The Social.

Drake's dance moves spark plenty of commentary

From Carlton Banks to Marvin Gaye, Toronto rapper Drake is sparking scores of comparisons, parodies and memes with his shimmy-shuffle slow grooves in his new video for the earworm Hotline Bling. But what do the dance experts think?

"Young man can dance and he's got some groove in his system," says renowned choreographer Tre Armstrong, who was a judge on So You Think You Can Dance Canada.

"It's all about vibe and groove for him. It's not about choreography, so people need to stop trippin'."

The video debuted on Apple Music on Monday night.

"I really applaud Drake for just having fun with it and just vibing out and doing his thing," said Aaron Libfeld, a partner at The Underground Dance Centre in Toronto.

"I think he was just channelling however the song made him feel and I think he was just expressing how he felt in his movements. It's really nice to see a rapper go out there and actually do that.

Actor meets the master

ATOM EGOYAN FILM

Dean Norris is not simply another cop in Remember

Richard Crouse
For Metro Canada

Dean Norris is best known for portraying police officers. "I play DEA, CIA, FBI, LAPD; I got 'em all," he once said. He became instantly recognizable to a generation of TV fans as the boisterous DEA agent Hank Schrader on Breaking Bad, and in his new film he's once again playing a cop, but with a twist.

"You almost feel sorry for him," says Norris, "until you realize who he is."

The film is Remember, a road movie of sorts. Christopher Plummer plays Zev, a man on a journey to justice, a quest to find the Nazi guard who killed his family 70 years before. Along the way he meets Norris as Officer Kurlander, a sad and lonely man with a connection to one of Zev's suspects.

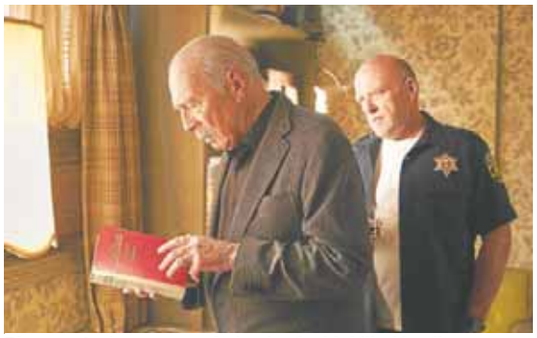
Their explosive meeting is difficult to discuss without giving away a plot point, but suffice to say Norris reveals when he had a chance to watch it he did so with his hands covering his face.

"We had three cameras going and I was like, 'Just run them and let me hit it,'" says the fifty-two-year-old actor. "It was one of the few times where I almost felt out of body. You know when you see red and get kind of blinded? I'm not even sure what I said some of the time."

Norris credits his director and co-star with making the five-day filming of the wild sequence possible. "(Atom Egoyan) does what the good directors do," he says, "and makes a comfortable space for you to play in and feel safe, which was important on this damn thing because it is so crazy. You want to feel safe to be able to go to wherever you have to go to, and I did with him."

Norris describes Plummer as one of the greats. "It was like working with Laurence Olivier."

"It was a pleasure to watch him," he says. "There would be moments where I'd be in the scene and saying to myself, 'I'm looking into the eyes of a man who has been in these scenes for decades. Been in the moment with unbelievable people in unbelievable movies.' It's like I wanted that to seep into me. Steal his essence.



Plummer's character seeks justice for his killed family. HANDOUT

"It's a memory I'll have for the rest of my life. I got to do a scene with him and it was a crazy, intense, awesome scene."

Meet the James Bond of journalism

DOCUMENTARY

Undercover reporter walks ethical line with tactics

Steve Gow
For Metro Canada

Anas Aremeyaw Anas is one compelling news reporter. Not only has the young investigator been labelled the "James Bond of Ghanaian journalism" but he has exposed sex-trafficking rings and uncovered human rights violations by going undercover using unorthodox costumes that include everything from posing as a brothel janitor to a sheik and even a rock.

As uncovered in the new documentary Chameleon, Anas's provocative work as editor of the New Crusading Guide has gained notoriety in Africa and even a mention on the world stage by President Barack Obama. But Anas is still largely unknown — mainly because he hides his identity to ensure the secrecy of his investigative stings.

"A mutual friend of ours sent me this article about Anas in Atlantic Magazine and it was just incredible," admitted filmmaker Ryan Mullins about how he discovered Anas. "I thought, this has to be my next story."

The Montreal-based director decided to craft an on-the-ground exposé of Anas' work. Through a mutual friend, Mullins easily located the disguised detective. But persuading the ever-elusive crusader to allow him to hang around while he cracked cases of corruption in the West African nation wasn't quite as simple.

"I'm naturally a very cautious person so I needed to think through it," explained Anas, adding he even did a thorough background check on Mullins before agreeing to make the movie. "The bigger picture was what I wanted to see or propagate (in the film) so that people can understand the type of journalism I do and how I do it (and) I felt that a film like this was going to help do that."

In a sense, Anas used the opportunity to help disseminate his crusade to "name, shame and jail" those accused of misdeeds in Africa. But Mullins was soon surprised to find larger issues plaguing the reporter's stealthy activism.

"At first I was just drawn to this larger-than-life story," said Mullins. "But gradually as time passed and some of the cases got a little more complicated, you can see the thought process going on — sometimes the lines that were being crossed. Was Anas a journalist? Was he a vigilante?"

It's just those ethical issues that elevate Chameleon from being an amusing documentary about an oddball character to an astonishing examination about the ethical boundary between journalism and activism. As the film points out, Anas "works directly with law enforcement to ensure that justice is carried out effectively" — not exactly non-partisan reportage.

While that grey area of his work may be controversial to many, Anas would be first to say it's an area that is clearly worth pursuing.

"I don't mind any tag that I'm given," said Anas. "If you call me a spy, I'll take it. If you call me a journalist, I'll take it. The key thing is, if journalism is about doing what benefits society, then I will call myself a journalist. The end (result) is most important — if it benefits society."

UNDERCOVER

Anas is known for his disguises. Here are a few faves that pop up in the doc:

The Rock
What is basically two eyeholes cut into a giant paper bag was good enough to spy trucks smuggling cocoa beans cross-border.

The Mental Patient
Anas posed as a mental patient. He exposed abuse, corruption and even a neglected body in the late stages of decay in a Ghanaian psychiatric hospital.

The Cop
Anas once dressed as an officer to catch corrupt customs officials at Ghana's largest seaport leading to the recovery of $200 million.

5 BOOKS IF YOU CAN'T GET ENOUGH OF BASEBALL

If there was ever a time to venture into the sports genre, this is it. One in four Canadians tuned in to some part of Game 5 last week when the Blue Jays beat the Texas Rangers. Now, even more is at stake as Toronto attempts to avoid elimination and advance to the World Series for the first time since 1993. From historical to analytical, biographical to fiction, baseball literature — like the games themselves — can capture the imagination of anyone. Metro looks at five recent books if you want even more baseball before Friday's important game.

ETHAN ROTBERG/FOR METRO

The game changer

At 13 years old, Mo'ne Davis was on the cover of Sports Illustrated after becoming the first female pitcher to win a game in the Little League World Series. In her autobiography Mo'ne Davis: Remember My Name: My Story from First Pitch to Game Changer, she covers learning to play baseball with the boys in Philadelphia to her rise to stardom on a national stage. Davis breaks long-held stereotypes and proves to young women they need not be relegated to softball. It's an inspiring memoir for young readers and adults alike.

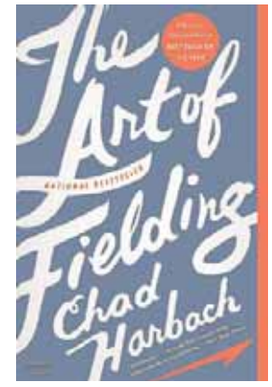
The rules

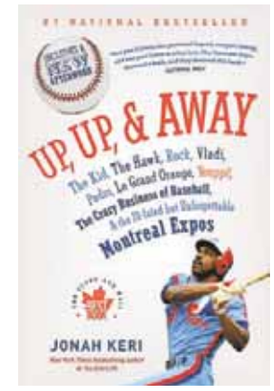
Baseball is known — heck, even loved — for its complex rules and statistics. Reading the game's official rulebook would be beyond tedious for even the most hardcore fanatic. So You Think You Know Baseball: A Fan's Guide to the Official Rules by Peter E. Meltzer uses real-life situations and commentary to explain both the obvious and ambiguous aspects of the game.



3

The mental game

The Art of Fielding: A Novel by Chad Harbach doesn't require the reader to have a heavy understanding of the game. The book focuses on a fictitious small liberal arts college baseball team. The protagonist — an undersized athlete with an unusual gift for fielding — is approaching a record for errorless games until things go awry. Now struggling with the mental aspect of the game, he faces an existential crisis.



4

The Expos-é

It's been more than 10 years since the Expos were relocated to Washington D.C. to become the Nationals, but the memories remain for fans in Quebec and beyond. In Up, Up, and Away: The Kid, the Hawk, Rock, Vladi, Pedro, le Grand Orange, Youppi!, the Crazy Business of Baseball, and the Ill-fated but Unforgettable Montreal Expos, Jonah Keri speaks to just about everyone involved with the team — from fans, players and executives. From the early years, to the strike-shortened team of 1994, to the ownership that allowed the team to be moved, Up, Up, and Away is the definitive history of Canada's first major league baseball team.

The road trip

Best friends Ben Blatt and Eric Brewster set out on the impossible task of visiting all 30 baseball stadiums in 30 days. Part story of baseball fandom and part road trip logistics, I Don't Care if We Never Get Back: 30 Games in 30 Days on the Best Worst Baseball Road Trip Ever is a story of friendship, and how it is tested and endures through the many challenges along the way. It's an entertaining look at what will remain only a dream for many fans of the game.

4 WAYS TO EXPERIENCE THE GREAT BARRIER REEF

Stretching 2,300 kilometres along Australia's Queensland coast, the Great Barrier Reef can be seen from outer space. Home to dolphins, whales and thousands of other underwater species, it's no wonder this World Heritage site tops many bucket lists. Whether you're looking for an underwater diving adventure, a dose of traditional Pamagirri culture, or peaceful nature retreat, situate yourself in Cairns and explore the area's beauty, spanning from the depths of the ocean to the hilly Daintree Rainforest. NATALIE NANOWSKI FOR METRO

ALL PHOTOS NATALIE NANOWSKI/FOR METRO

1 The Adventurer

In the middle of the ocean, look for Nemo and bump into giant sea turtles as you explore the depths of the Great Barrier Reef. The three-day trip with ProDive Cairns features 11 dives and is perfect for avid divers or beginners (about $700 for three days, more for a beginner's course). Stay in cosy cabins, chatting with travellers from around the world, and devour delicious meals that are prepared by the ship's cook. The two night dives add an extra thrill as you plunge into pitch-black water and swim alongside whitetip reef sharks. Make sure to pack anti-nausea pills as the three-hour ride into the middle of the Pacific Ocean can be choppy. (prodivecairns.com)

2 The Trendy Connoisseur

Sip on exotic wines made from mango, lychee or passion fruit at Shannonvale winery. About an hour drive from Cairns, the sprawling organic tropical orchard produces 12 different types of wine and port, many award-winning, priced at $25 a bottle. Since grapes don't fare well in Northern Australia, wine lovers Tony and Trudie Woodall decided to make table wines from something different. The easy-to-drink passion fruit wine is perfect for summer, while the medium-bodied ginger-based wine complements Asian dishes. (shannonvalewine.com.au)

3 The Eco Lover

Unwind inside a luxurious tree house to a symphony of birds, frogs and waterfalls at Daintree Ecolodge and Spa (rooms starts at $330 a night). This 32-acre property is dotted with wild orchids and papaya trees, and lies within the lush Daintree Rainforest. Take a boat tour at dawn down the Daintree River to spot saltwater crocodiles as long as six feet, but make sure to keep your eyes peeled for tiny colourful kingfishers that dart by. A 15-minute hike through woods sacred to the Kuku Yalanji tribe will lead you to Tranquil Falls, where you can cool off in the stream. Before indulging in contemporary Australian dishes of battered coral trout and grilled barramundi, relax at the retreat's spa. Try the Walbul-Walbul massage with local aromatic oils, mud and rainforest water for a head-to-toe experience. (daintree-ecolodge.com.au)

4 The Culture Seeker

A jam-packed tour takes you about 330 metres above sea level through the rugged Queensland mountains on century-old railcars to Kuranda village. Take in the scenic waterfalls and valleys as you learn about the country's first settlers and gold rush. Dine on kangaroo meat before being whisked off to see Pamagirri tribe members show off their spear-hunting skills and musical forte on a hollowed-out log called the didgeridoo. After a traditional dance performance, you can pet kangaroos and kolas, and get up close to the hyperactive Tasmanian devil. Finally, wind through trees and rivers on a six-wheel amphibious army truck as a knowledgeable guide explains the area's flora and fauna. (capta.com.au)

The world is not enough

If you think you've seen a lot of the world, consider James Bond. Everyone's favourite movie spy has visited nearly 50 countries and every continent over the course of his long and adventurous career. He's even been to outer space. His latest movie, Spectre, takes him back to Mexico City, among other places, and brings him into contact with his arch-nemesis Blofeld. In honour of the upcoming release, we've chosen five epic travel destinations that Bond has visited and so can you. MARK STACHIEW FOR METRO

1 Jamaica

The first assignment of Sean Connery's Bond in Dr. No brought him to Jamaica, which happens to be where series creator Ian Fleming wrote all of his Bond novels. His Goldeneye villa is now part of a hotel of the same name. Your visit should take you to the beach at Dunn's River Falls, where an appreciative Bond watched Honey Ryder, played by Ursula Andress, emerge from the sea. Be sure to pack your white bikini.

2 Schilthorn, Switzerland

Britain's super-spy spends a lot of time on skis as many of his adventures take him to the European Alps. Some of the most spectacular mountain scenery in the series is set atop the Schilthorn in Switzerland as seen in On Her Majesty's Secret Service, George Lazenby's only Bond movie. Visitors can dine at the Piz Gloria, a revolving restaurant on the summit, which was completed thanks to financing from the movie's producers.

3 Luxor, Egypt

Roger Moore's Bond amassed a ton of frequent-flyer miles as he criss-crossed the globe chasing villains in a series of exotic locales, including the awe-inspiring, ancient Karnak temple at Luxor in Egypt. While there, he battled his metal-mouthed foe, Jaws. You won't have to worry about Jaws if you go, but some travellers are skipping Egypt these days because of terrorism fears, real or imagined. Bond laughs at terrorists.

4 Monaco

Put on your tuxedo and brush up on your baccarat skills at the Casino de Monte Carlo in Monaco, and hope that you are as lucky at gambling as Pierce Brosnan's Bond was in Goldeneye. If you're bad at cards, you can always play the slot machines, which somehow seem out of place here.

5 Siena, Italy

The biannual Palio de Siena serves as a backdrop while Daniel Craig's Bond chases a bad guy on the town's cobbled roofs in Quantum of Solace. The colourful race pits riders from different wards of the Tuscan town against each other for nothing more than a painted banner, but winning it can prompt months of celebration in that ward.

A serene stroll down avenues of the dead in Montmartre

Just around the corner, it's a typical Parisian rush hour with bumper-to-bumper cars honking their way down the Boulevard de Clichy past garish shop fronts and the blazing red sails of the Moulin Rouge.

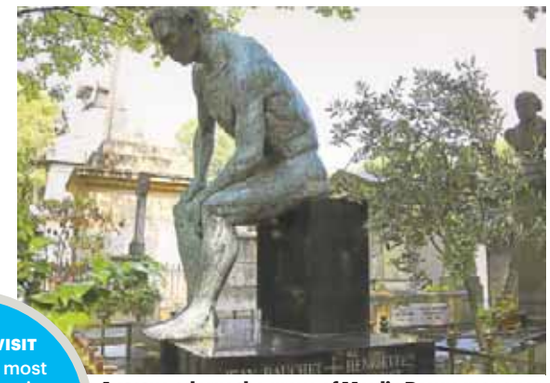
But here in the Montmartre cemetery the only sound is the trill of birds as they flit through the shady trees lining the avenues of the dead.

It doesn't get much more serene than this.

This is not the cemetery where The Doors' lead singer Jim Morrison is buried; that's Pere Lachaise. But it is the final resting place of several painters, composers, writers and other artists, testament to Montmartre's Bohemian past.

PLAN YOUR VISIT
A map to the most famous graves is available online: equipement.paris.fr/cimetiere-de-montmartre-5061

Some of the cemetery's most famous residents include composers Hector Berlioz (Symphonie Fantastique) and Jacques Offenbach (The Tales of Hoffman). Dancer Rudolf Nijinsky is here as is Edgar Degas, famous for his paintings of ballet dancers. Also:



A statue adorns the grave of Moulin Rouge manager Jean Bauchet in Montmartre's cemetery in Paris.
MICHELLE LOCKE VIA THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Adolphe Sax, inventor of the saxophone.

In a neat little bit of literary history, you can find the grave of Alexandre Dumas, who wrote The Three Musketeers, as well as the grave of Alphonsine Plessis, the courtesan who was the inspiration for Dumas' La Dame Aux Camelias. The tragic story laid the foundations for the opera La Traviata and the movie Camille.

And if you don't feel like tracking down graves, this is also a perfectly good place to simply wander, investigating memorials that catch your eye, like the full-size statue of a man atop the grave of Jean Bauchet. Not a household name, but he was a manager of the Moulin Rouge, the famous cabaret, just a short walk away.

Walking back to Boulevard Clichy from the cemetery entrance you will find Corcoran's Irish Pub. It's a good place to toast the ghosts of Montmartre.

Planning this year's ski trip

ISTOCK

ON THE MOVE

Here's the lowdown on new deals, new technology

Loren Christie
For Metro Canada

Planning to hit the slopes this winter? Here are some tips to make the most out of this year's ski season.

Book now

The clock is running out on early booking deals. Destinations like Kicking Horse Mountain Resort and Kimberley Alpine Resort located in British Columbia's interior are offering two nights free when you book five or more nights, the fifth day on the mountain free and free skiing for kids if you book by Nov. 30.

Pick a place that suits your style

The ski resorts in Alberta's national parks offer untouched beauty. In British Columbia you will find great ski-in/ski-out options like Kelowna's Silver Star Resort or Sun Peaks in Kamloops. For a mix of culture and ski consider spending your days on the slopes of Le Massif or Mt. Ste. Anne while you spend your nights in charming Quebec City.

Hotel or condo?

If you stay in a hotel where you can't cook your own meals, pick a destination with a variety of dining options. If you don't mind the cooking and cleaning, book a condo with kitchenette and inquire about food delivery options. Some of the resorts like Big White near Kelowna have arrangements with local grocery stores to deliver food to your condo. They can have it waiting for you when you arrive, saving you the need of a rental car.

Embrace technology

Resorts across Canada are using the Flaik GPS system for children's ski lessons. It not only tracks kids all over the mountain, but shares stats with parents, including the trails their kids traversed, how much vertical they skied or boarded and their average speed.

Want to scratch heli-skiing off your bucket list?

Nonstop Ski and Snowboard's Ready to Heli program is a great option for skiers who may be nervous about their ability to ski in powder or off-piste. The package includes three days of coaching at B.C.'s Fernie Alpine Resort, a day of cat-skiing and has you graduate to a day of heli-skiing in the Purcell Mountains at the end of the week.

What about the non-skier in the family?

The fastest-growing winter activity for non- skiers is fat-biking. Monster tires and low gearing mean biking in snow is easy for both first-timers and seasoned cyclists. Many spots across the country including smaller resorts like Ontario's Horseshoe Resort now offer groomed trails for fatbikers.

Ovechkin just too much for Canucks to overcome

NHL

Capitals' star scores winner in third frame

Cam Tucker
Metro | Vancouver

Alex Ovechkin lived up to his billing as "The Great Eight" against the Vancouver Canucks on Thursday at Rogers Arena.

Ryan Miller had gotten the best of the Washington Capitals' star on a numerous occasions earlier in the evening, but Ovechkin finally solved the Canucks' goalie late in the third period, blasting a slap shot past Miller to give the visitors the lead and eventually a 3-2 win.

The Canucks, who had the lead heading into the third period, have still yet to win a game on home ice this young season.

The individual battle between Ovechkin and Miller was a good one.

Miller made two great saves, including one of absolute robbery in the first period, as he slid to his right to somehow stop Ovechkin on a one-timer from his favourite spot – the left wing, with that right-handed shot.

CAPITALS	CANUCKS

The two met again in the in the third period, with Miller once again sliding to his right with the pad down to stop Ovechkin on a power play shot from almost the exact same spot.

Ovechkin, however, would not be denied. Again, stationed on his off-wing, he unleashed his fierce shot that sailed over the shoulder of Miller but off the under side of the cross bar and in with less than five minutes remaining in regulation.

Playing their second of three games on this swing through Alberta and British Columbia, the Capitals opened the scoring late in the first period.

Jason Chimera beat Canucks defenceman Matt Bartkowski to the net off the rush and deflected a perfect pass from Jay Beagle for his third goal of the season.

Bartkowski was left with only one option — to wave his stick in a futile attempt to stop the pass.

As Chimera celebrated, Bartkowski slammed his stick against the end boards.

The Canucks answered in the second period.

Reunited in order to re-ignite their offensive games, the Sedin twins, Daniel and Henrik, and Radim Vrbata accounted for the only two Vancouver goals.

Vrbata, who entered the game without a point, scored his first of the season – an ugly one, too. Henrik Sedin's pass in front from behind the net hit off Vrbata's skate and through the legs of Braden Holtby.

They all count.

Henrik Sedin gave the Canucks the lead late in the second period, giving Vancouver just its second power play goal of the season on its 23rd opportunity.

Lions trying to think positive

Despite fourth-quarter falters that gifted opposing teams last-minute or overtime wins in the last two weeks, the B.C. Lions are trying to think positively.

From offence, to defence, to special teams, the Lions have illustrated numerous deficiencies. But the thing about the Canadian Football League – among its quirks, if you will – is a team with a subpar record can still qualify for one of the final playoff positions.

Five wins all season has the Leos hunkered down in what feels like a turtle's pace playoff race for the final post-season position in the West Division.

> We just need to get over that hump.
> Jonathon Jennings

One position, three teams – including the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the West and Montreal Alouettes in the East, with the potential to be a crossover team – and they're stuck at 10 points, with records well below the .500 mark.

The Lions now find themselves trying to move on from an overtime loss to the Edmonton Eskimos last weekend that once again held B.C. back from nearing a post-season berth.

"Sometimes things don't go your way but you've got to play a whole game," said first-year quarterback Jonathon Jennings, who will make his fifth straight start when the Lions host the Hamilton Tiger-Cats on Friday.

"I think we've got a really good team. We just need to get over that hump."

Whitecaps lose to Olimpia
The Vancouver Whitecaps lost their final game of the CONCACAF Champions League group stage on Thursday, dropping a 1-0 decision to C.D. Olimpia of Honduras.

Nestor Martinez scored the winning goal for Olimpia in the 69th minute.

Both teams, including a Whitecaps squad decimated by injury and playing with only three subs on the bench, entered Thursday's game unable to advance to the knockout stage.

With a home playoff date on the line, the Whitecaps close out the 2015 MLS regular season Sunday against the Houston Dynamo.

Seahawks pound 49ers
Russell Wilson and the Seahawks ruled their one-sided rivalry against the 49ers for another night.

Another Thursday night, in fact, and on San Francisco's home field again.

Wilson threw a 43-yard touchdown pass to Tyler Lockett late in the first half, Marshawn Lynch added a 1-yard score, and Seattle beat San Francisco 20-3 on Thursday night for its fourth straight win between the NFC West rivals.

The Seahawks (3-4) whipped San Francisco (2-5) in Levi's Stadium.

Dutch football great Johan Cruyff is battling lung cancer, his spokeswoman said Thursday.

"He has been in hospital this week for tests and lung cancer has been confirmed," said Carole Thate, a spokeswoman for the 68-year-old former Ajax and Barcelona star.

She gave no further comment on Cruyff's condition, saying he was undergoing further tests.

Jays' season on line in Game 6

ALCS

Must beat K.C. twice to reach World Series

The Kansas City Royals have established a reputation for dramatic post-season comebacks the past couple of years, beginning with last season's wild-card victory over Oakland.

Turns out, the Toronto Blue Jays have some never-say-quit spirit as well.

After going on a second-half run to make the playoffs, then rallying from a 2-0 deficit to defeat Texas in a best-of-five matchup, the Blue Jays will try to beat the Royals in another win-or-else situation in Game 6 of the AL Championship Series on Friday night.

Toronto forced the series back to Kansas City with a 7-1 rout Wednesday, closing to 3-2.

"You look at all the elimination games, our offence has really come to life," Blue Jays manager John Gibbons said Thursday. "We've said all along that's the key to our team, scoring runs. You hate to make a habit of it, but maybe we can pull it off again."

David Price will take the mound for the Blue Jays after his collapse in the series opener, when he tossed six shutout innings and then surrendered five runs in the seventh.

Yordano Ventura will oppose him for Kansas City. He was only marginally better, allowing three runs and eight hits in 5-1/3 innings before watching the comeback win from the dugout.

"I'm very fortunate and happy that this game has landed on my turn, here in Kansas City, and with the opportunity to take this club to the World Series," Ventura said through catching coach Pedro Grifol, acting as a translator. "I'll be ready for this game."

The Blue Jays promise they will be, too. Toronto lost the first two games against the Rangers at home, then won three straight with its season hanging in the balance. The first two were at Texas, and the last at Rogers Centre, but none of the victories was even close — all by at least three runs.

The Blue Jays lost the first two games in Kansas City, too.

RECIPE Fish Sandwich

Ceri Marsh & Laura Keogh
For Metro Canada

The combination of crunchy fish, spicy mayo and crusty bread is killer. And a sandwich for dinner is easy yet satisfying.

Ready in
Prep time: 15 minutes
Serves 4

Ingredients
- 2 Tilapia filets
- 1/4 cup corn meal
- Salt and pepper
- 1/4 tsp chili powder
- A bit of vegetable oil
- 1/4 cup fresh parsley, chopped
- 4 buns
- 4 romaine leaves, chopped
- 2 tomatoes, sliced
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 1/2 Tbsp ketchup
- 3 tsp Sriracha

Directions

1. Spread corn meal evenly on a plate and toss in salt, pepper, chilli and parsley until it's all combined. Spread the mixture evenly on your plate.
2. Rinse fish and pat them dry with paper towel. Press the fish into the corn meal and turn over, press the other side into the corn meal.
3. In a large pan, heat some vegetable oil to medium heat. Place your fish down in the pan. It will take about 5 minutes on the first side and only about 3 on the other side.
4. While your fish is cooking, mix up your mayo, ketchup and Sriracha in a small bowl.
5. Check your fish. The corn meal will be crusty and the fish should be opaque. Break your fish into large pieces.
6. Slice open your buns and spread mayo on each side. Place your chopped lettuce down, then fish, then tomato.
